HONOLULU (CP)—Hawaiians, who haven't forgotten Pearl Harbor, are protesting the flaring introduction they got to the age of atomic missiles Friday.

A nuclear warhead was sent streaking an estimated four miles high over Johnston Island shortly after midnight. The giant mushroom cloud of its incandescent explosion was visible here, 700 miles northeast, for as long as 10 minutes.

Thousands saw it. As the mushroom cloud reared itself over the horizon after the initial white flash, it turned a gullen red shot with streaks of blue and green. The cloud rose many thousands of feet higher into the stratosphere.

Calls to the police more than quadrupled as alarmed residents asked if Pearl Harbor had been blasted again.

Hawaii's Gov. William F. Quinn asked again for permission to warn the public when such blasts are impending. Less tactful protests were heard from others.

The explosion of an Army Redstone capable of around 200 miles horizontal range and possibly 100 miles in vertical climb, was perhaps the first test of a missile designed to intercept an intercontinental ballistic missile.

An ICBM, with a speed of 15,000 miles per hour, could travel from Russia in half an hour and destroy a whole city, affording a possible 15 minute warning. But during that 15 minutes an anti-missile missile might destroy it.

Hawaiians had been warned tests were coming. The Atomic Energy Commission had said the surface danger area of nearly 600 miles would remain in effect around Johnston Island for three or four weeks beginning July 25. Last Friday, another warning was issued.

Judges Know Little About Race Problems

By AL DOPKING

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The seven judges who will hear the Little Rock integration case appeal Monday come from states where racial problems are remote.

But they are not strangers to the Little Rock case. As members of the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, they have dealt with it three times. Each time they ruled in favor of integration.

This time, the case is back on an appeal by the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People from a U. S. District Court order postponing integration at Little Rock's Central High School for 2 1/2 years.

The Supreme Court is in recess until October and the appellate court's decision will decide whether seven Negro pupils can return to Central, where integration was enforced last year with federal troops.

Who are these seven judges? Most of them come from the upper Midwest. Of the seven states in the district, Arkansas alone has no member of the bench.

There is the chief justice, Archibald K. Gardner of Huron, S. D., 61, who is the oldest active federal judge in the nation.

Other members of the court are Joseph E. Woodrough, 60, Omaha; John H. Sanborn, 74, St. Paul; Harvey M. Johnson, 69, Hastings; Nob. Charles J. Vogel, 60, Fargo; N.D.; Martin D. Oosterhout, 58, Orange City, Iowa; and Martin C. Matthews, 52, St. Louis.

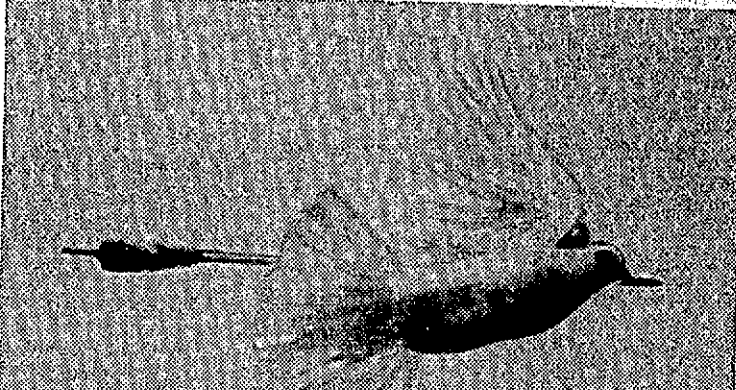

Gardner, Sanborn, Oosterhout and Matthews are Republicans; Johnson, a widow, points out rather faintly he was around long before the integration cases. He and Johnson upheld the original Little Rock integration order. They also upheld Dist. Judge Ronald E. Davies of Fargo, N.D., in enjoining Gov. Orval Faubus from using National Guardsmen to keep Negro students out of the school last fall.

No one expects a decision Monday. It generally takes several weeks. In this case, it may come within days. The Circuit Court has been reminded by the Supreme Court that time is important because of the approaching school term.

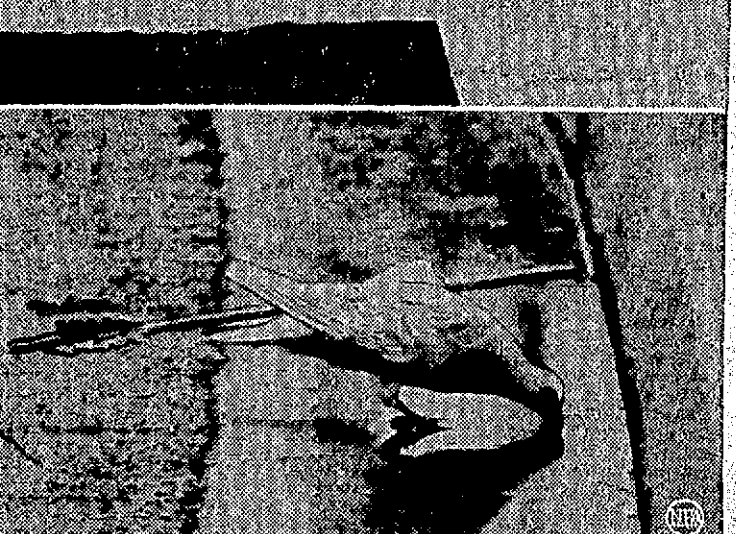

The integration delay was ordered by U.S. Dist. Judge Harry J. Lemley of Hope, Ark., at the request of the Little Rock school board to allow a peaceful interlude.

Haiti President Emerges Stronger

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP)—President Francois Duvalier has emerged from Haiti's latest political crisis with power to rule the volatile Negro republic as a dictator for the next six months and with his own political position apparently strengthened.

The National Assembly empowered him Thursday to govern by decree after he had taken a personal part in crushing an attempt by three former Haitian army officers and four North American adventurers to start a revolt.

Failure of any serious backing for the revolt to materialize was taken to mean that Duvalier's position at home is neither very weak nor very bold.

Arab Union Hurls Charge at Israel

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—The United Arab Republic accused Israel Thursday night of sending seven tractors with an armed escort into the demilitarized border zone of Syria to destroy Arab crops.

The U. A. R. asked the U. N. Mixed Armistice Commission to investigate.

Irak Oil Blaze as Yet Unchecked

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP)—A fire at the government-owned petroleum depot burned for the third day today. The government announced it had arrested several persons in connection with the blaze.

Information Minister Sadiq Shamsi said they had been found near the fire when it broke out Wednesday.

Shortly after the fire broke out Baghdad was swept with rumors that it was set to sabotage the new government.

GI Cleared in Korea Shooting

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—The U.S. Army cleared Sgt. Roger A. Blevins of Circleville, Ohio, today of blame for fatally shooting a Korean thief.

An 8th Army spokesman said no charges will be filed.

Minor Change in Cotton Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House subcommittee on cotton agreed Thursday to make some minor changes but accept the new two year cotton program in the farm bill already passed by the Senate.

The Senate's idea is to set up a national cotton allotment of 16 million acres and give farmers this alternative:

A—Plant within individual acreage allotments and receive price supports pegged to 75 per cent of parity.

B—Increase acreage allotments 40 per cent and get a support price pegged at 80 per cent of parity.

The amendment drawn up by the House subcommittee would give "A" farmers price supports pegged at 80 per cent for 1959 and 75 per cent for 1960. The "B" farmers would get 85 per cent in 1959 and 80 per cent in 1960.

The house group also would give the secretary of agriculture power to set the acreage increase for "B" farmers at any figure up to 40 per cent.

Prospects Are Brighter for Better Times

WASHINGTON (AP)—Is the recession over? Not yet, by a good many months.

But the recovery definitely is in prospect, government economists believe, and so far it has been stronger and clearer than they had expected.

One White House adviser now expects total national output to reach 1951's prerecession rate—about 44 1/2 billion dollars—a year—around the turn of the year.

Some others, it should be noted, foresee a slower climb. But there is a growing disposition to believe the recovery will be over this winter or next spring, in the sense that the business barometers by then will be back to last summer's historic peaks.

Even that will not mean a full employment economy. At least a year and a half of economic growth will have been lost—the growth that is necessary to absorb the steady increase in the size of the labor force.

Also, productivity, or the rate of output per man, will have risen so that fewer workers will be needed to produce the same volume of goods and services.

For both those reasons unemployment is expected to remain high for some time after business activity begins to establish new records.

It's possible we'll see full employment again by the middle of 1959, or perhaps by the third quarter, said one top administration adviser privately.

It is conceded that all forecasts may have to be revised if the United States becomes more deeply involved in military operations in the Middle East. But barring a shooting war, the rate of military buildup is not expected to accelerate sharply.

Khrushchev Has Two Choices In Summit Meet

By JOHN HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials looked today for a quick and probably favorable reply from Moscow to the U. S.-British proposal for a U.N. summit conference to begin about Aug. 12.

These authorities said, however, that the exact response of Soviet Premier Khrushchev is more than ordinarily difficult to predict. Because the Russian leader has been confronted with not one but two conflicting summit proposals from the West, these officials say Khrushchev is in a position to pick and choose, French Premier de Gaulle has called for a five power meeting to begin in Geneva Aug. 18—and outside the framework of the United Nations.

In the series of exchanges between Western leaders and Khrushchev over the past two weeks, the Soviet Premier at one point agreed to a U. N. Security Council session of heads of government—as advocated by President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Macmillan. But Khrushchev later came out strongly for his original proposal of July 19 for a five-power conference of the type which De Gaulle favors. Thus Khrushchev is in position to move either way.

President Eisenhower's latest move in negotiations for a summit meeting to discuss the tense Middle Eastern situation came Friday in another note to Khrushchev. In it, Eisenhower said for the first time that if a special session of the U.N. Security Council is arranged he will attend "and I hope that you would do likewise."

Eisenhower left open the question of a site, saying that the meeting might be held in some place other than New York City, which is U.N. headquarters. There was much talk that the decision might eventually go to Geneva or possibly another West European city.

In his new reply to Khrushchev, Eisenhower again rejected the Soviet charge that U.S.-British troop landings in Lebanon and Jordan threatened world peace.

"The problem of the Middle East is not one of a threat of aggression by the United States," Eisenhower wrote, "but rather the threat, by others, of further indirect aggression against dependent states. This problem is clearly the responsibility of the United Nations Security Council."

Probably the busiest times for any railroad were during the war years. Lines going through our town were no exception, with extra freight being hauled and special troop trains being operated. The passengers on those special trains were just that to all of us — something special.

Regardless of whether the times are normal or full of stress, watching a moving train create a million stories in one's mind. Who are the people on the train? Where are they going and why? Is it important? Is it urgent? Is it fun?

Yes, there is always something fascinating about a train... for as, like time, goes on and on and on.

Senate Group Would Reverse Court Decision

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee voted today to undo the effect of a Supreme Court decision on a restoration to the states the right to enforce their anti-subversion laws.

Before approving the bill by a divided vote, the committee agreed not to sponsor an amendment to a broader states' rights bill recently passed by the House.

The House measure provides that federal laws shall not supersede state laws of the same subject unless Congress expressly says so or unless there is a direct and irreconcilable conflict between them.

The bill as approved applies only to state and federal legislation in the field of subversion.

The committee's action, announced by Chairman James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) after a closed-door session, apparently broke a session-long logjam over measures aimed at recent decisions of the Supreme Court.

Over two months ago the committee approved 10-5 the Jenner-Rutler bill to curb the court's review powers and to overcome the effects of its decisions in a number of Communist cases.

However, that measure never has been called up in the Senate and even its strongest supporters have abandoned hope of passing it.

Eastland told newsmen he will go before the Senate Democratic Policy Committee Tuesday and ask it to schedule action on the bill approved today.

The vote on the bill was announced by Eastland as 2-1, with three absent committee members to be given a chance to vote later in the day.

Eastland said that the votes of individual members would not be disclosed until after the roll call is complete.

The Story of Hope Is a Story of the Missouri Pacific RR

By MARY ANITA LASTER

Why was I born? "our community was heard to ask its citizens. The reply was simple.

In 1873, a $100 contribution toward building a railroad right-of-way caused the "Cairo & Fulton" to route its line through Hope.

As the name implies, the railroad extended from Cairo, Ill., to Fulton, Ark. No bridges spanned Red River, so the line had to end at the water's edge. In a few months, though, a bridge was built and the length of the "Cairo & Fulton" was extended.

The name of the road was changed to the "St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern" a few years after tracks were laid through Hope, but it didn't acquire its present name — "Missouri-Pacific" — until 1905 or 1906.

Built with men and wheelbarrows, the original road bed was broad gauge but was changed to a standard size in 1878. When it was narrowed, the road bed was completed more quickly because $25 was offered the section foreman whose section was finished first. And that was a prize well worth any extra effort.

Col. Gus Noble, the first road master, surveyed the road from Cairo to Texarkana. He would have known that all train robberies didn't happen in a distant state or in stories.

A case in point was the train robbery which occurred at a water tank four miles east of Hope in 1881. In the best of "stick-'em-up" tradition, a posse was formed, the thieves were chased and caught just before they reached a refuge in the "Indian Nation" (Oklahoma).

A story told me by a relative, who happens to be my favorite Republican, concerns an unusual event regarding this railroad. One quiet day in Hope in the year 1901, the sound of the approaching Cannon Ball Express were heard at the usual time.

When the train came in sight, though, there was a woman riding in the fireman's seat of the engine. That person, was none other than Miss Helen Gould! She had wanted to ride in the engine, and as the daughter of the railroad's owner she could certainly have that wish fulfilled.

Probably the busiest times for any railroad were during the war years. Lines going through our town were no exception, with extra freight being hauled and special troop trains being operated. The passengers on those special trains were just that to all of us — something special.

Regardless of whether the times are normal or full of stress, watching a moving train create a million stories in one's mind. Who are the people on the train? Where are they going and why? Is it important? Is it urgent? Is it fun?

Yes, there is always something fascinating about a train... for as, like time, goes on and on and on.

Test Is Aimed at Countering Missiles

HONOLULU (AP)—A nuclear explosive, riding a ballistic missile, was blasted off above the Pacific Ocean today.

The test shot apparently was a preliminary step and research aimed at developing a weapon able to destroy intercontinental ballistic missiles out in space.

The Atomic Energy Commission and Defense Department said only that a "test detonation of a nuclear warhead in a missile occurred above the area of Johnston Island and that it was part of this summer's weapons test series in the Pacific."

Just how high the explosion occurred was not announced. First indications here were that the blast may have occurred in the fringe of space. However, reports from Honolulu by weather office experts indicated that the altitude was much low in the neighborhood of 20,000 feet.

The missile used was believed to have been the army's Redstone bombardment missile, adapted on this occasion to a high altitude flight. The redstone could attain a vertical range of as much as 100 miles.

Beauty Winner Off to Washington

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Three beauty contest winners boarded a plane here today en route to Washington, D. C.

They were Julia French of Bee Branch, Miss. North Arkansas; her sister, Mary, also of Bee Branch, Queen White River; and Kathleen Hobbs, Miss. Batesville.

The Washington trip, during which they will visit the U. S. House of Representatives and the White House, were their prizes for winning their respective contests.

Department Store Sales Increase

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Department store sales in the Eighth Federal Reserve District last week slipped up three per cent over the corresponding week a year ago.

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis said today all district cities reporting shared in the increase.

Memphis sales were up nine per cent; Little Rock four per cent; Louisville five per cent. St. Louis two per cent and seven smallest district cities one per cent on the average.

For the four weeks ended last week sales were one per cent below the same period in 1957.

Hard to Guess What Summit Talks to Bring

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Trying to guess what kind of summit meeting to expect—if any—is like trying to look through a window with the shade down, the shutters closed and the glass painted black.

This writer—after watching the big powers' maneuvering—won't believe there'll be a meeting until it actually starts. But, if it does, this is the basic question:

Is it going to be a real summit meeting or will it be turned into a kind of town meeting of the world with everyone and his grandmother getting up to speak his piece?

Soviet Premier Khrushchev wants India—besides the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France—to sit in on the summit meeting. And, since the meeting will be on the Middle East, he wants the Arab states to get in on the act.

But if the Arabs are heard, the Jews of Israel sitting right in the center of the Arab world, will have a right to speak. Turkey, Iran and Pakistan, all linked in with the Middle East, no doubt will want to be heard too.

And so many others. All that takes time. So just how much time will the big powers have to discuss the problem which prompted the meeting?

None of that is clear or predictable now and won't be for some time.

Khrushchev isn't choosy about where the meeting is held. But President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Macmillan say it should take place within the United Nations Security Council.

That Council is made up of 11 nations, including the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union. If the heads of those four governments sit down in the place of their regular delegates, the heads of the remaining seven nations may want to do the same. As members of the Council, they'd all have a right to talk.

Eisenhower wants the 11 nations' delegates now on the Council to make the arrangements for a summit meeting in the Council. This, presumably, would include agreement on what nations should be heard and for how long.

But the delegates on the Council haven't yet started discussing such arrangements. And since the Soviet Union and the Western powers have so much trouble agreeing on anything, it's difficult to see how they'd quickly agree on summit arrangements.

The Eisenhower administration takes the position that the big powers shouldn't try by themselves to work out decisions that would be rammed down the throats of smaller nations.

Yet no stability in the Middle East—in the sense of guaranteeing frontiers, agreement against outside attack and so on—can be assured at all unless the big powers do agree on what to do.

Even if they meet within the framework of the United Nations, the U. N. itself will be powerless to assure stability in the Middle East unless the big powers agree on how to do it.

Meanwhile, French Premier de Gaulle has called for a summit meeting. Continued on Page Two

Travis Mathis Withdraws From Race

Travis Mathis withdrew Friday from the race for prosecuting attorney, conceding the election to Joyce Welsenberger, Hope attorney, who led the ticket in the pre-fidential primary Tuesday.

Mathis, who had been seeking re-election to a third term as prosecutor, contacted the Miller County Democratic Central Committee Friday and asked that his name not be placed on the August 12 ballot.

On being advised of Mathis' withdrawal from the race, Welsenberger said:

"I am naturally pleased that I will be running without opposition on August 12. I am deeply gratified by the great showing of confidence in me, demonstrated by the vote in every county in the circuit on July 20. I shall devote my professional career for the next two and one-half years toward making all the people of the Eighth Judicial Circuit a prosecuting attorney with whom they will be well pleased."

In announcing his decision to withdraw from the race, Mathis issued the following statement:

"I am deeply and humbly grateful to my many friends and loyal supporters for their help in my campaign for re-election as prosecuting attorney. However, my Hempstead County opponent has come into the run-off with a lead of 2500 votes, lacking only 600 votes being elected. This means that if the same number of votes were cast in the run-off as in the first primary he would have to gain only 301 votes to win while I would have to gain 2801 to win."

"There is also the additional fact that there are no local races; other than the race for coroner, to bring out the vote in Miller County, which was my other strong county in addition to Clark County. After making a survey over the district I feel that it would be an imposition on my supporters and close friends to ask them to help me prolong my campaign. For these reasons I am conceding the election to Mr. Welsenberger and wish him a successful administration as prosecuting attorney."

Testifies Her Life Was Threatened

WASHINGTON (AP)—A woman witness testified today someone representing himself as "Hoffa of the teamsters," threatened her in an effort to silence her testimony before the Senate Rackets Committee.

Mrs. Nancy Dawson, president of the Dawson Industrial Laundry Co. of Detroit, told the committee the warning for her to "keep your mouth shut" was delivered by telephone to her secretary July 8. She said she didn't know who actually made the call.

leged labor rackets in the Detroit laundry business.

It has summoned James R. Hoffa, international president of the Teamsters Union, for questioning next week.

The committee denounced Hoffa in a recent report to the Senate, calling him a consort of gangsters who abused his union power and misused union funds.

The committee had announced recently it had arranged police protection for a woman witness who had been threatened and who, it was feared, might come to harm for cooperating in the hearings.

This was the first official word that Mrs. Dawson was the witness although word had leaked out yesterday about her.

Mr. Dawson testified that exactly a week after the first threat he got another.

This also was in a telephone call to her secretary who gave her a message headed: "Teamsters—Mr. Hoffa."

It said, referring to Mrs. Dawson, "We don't want anything to happen to her and her family. We have seen her with that little dog Salinger. This is not meant to be a threat."

Pierre Salinger is a criminal investigator who interviewed Mrs. Dawson.

It's women without heads that make fools of men without heads.

Miss Cecilia Ann Cox Reports on Conference
Miss Cecilia Ann Cox of Fulton attended the Fifth Baptist Youth World Conference in Toronto, Canada, June 27 through July 2.

She and 114 other young people from Arkansas left Little Rock, Arkansas, on June 23, by chartered buses. They made a number of interesting stops before reaching Toronto, one of the most impressive being Niagara Falls.

Miss Cox told of her trip at the Fulton Union Church where five Protestant denominations worship together. She gave an interesting talk on the conference and what it meant to her. Then she followed the talk with slides which she made at the conference and throughout the trip.

Of the return trip, they made stops in New York City, Washington, D. C. and Knoxville, Tennessee.

Board to Study Parole for McCool

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The State Board of Pardons and Paroles said today Thurman McCool of Pine Bluff, sentenced to five years imprisonment nearly two years ago on charges of forging state warrants, will be considered for parole next Wednesday.

McCool, former president of the Office Supply and Equipment Co. at Pine Bluff, pleaded guilty Oct. 4, 1956 to forging $15,000 in warrants.

The three warrants were caught in the state treasurer's office after they had passed through the Simmons National Bank of Pine Bluff and the Federal Reserve Bank here.

McCool, now 45, remained silent throughout the sensational case and never offered an explanation for his actions, nor did he explain what happened to him Aug. 21—the day the forgeries were discovered.

On that day McCool appeared at his home in Pine Bluff wet, badly beaten and with an apparent bullet wound in his upper left arm. He was treated for several days in a Pine Bluff hospital.

In court at Pine Bluff before Circuit Judge Henry W. Smith, McCool did not speak a word. His plea of guilty was entered by his attorney.

Youth's Life Hinges on a Kidney

By Dick SINNOTT
BOSTON (AP)—Nils-Olov Wisell is different from most boys 11-years-old. He's small—4½ feet. He's light—50 pounds. And his life hinges on a human kidney the size of your fist.

The youngster was born with only one kidney. He lost it last April when he toppled from a merry-go-round near his home in Motala, Sweden. Doctors hope to save his life in a history-making operation by transplanting a kidney from his mother.

Thus far, kidney transplants have been successful only between identical twins. All transplants between non-identical twins have been unsuccessful.

Since he was admitted to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital on July 1, 50 doctors and surgeons have been working on Nils.

More than a thousand persons from hospitals' laboratories to laundries are attempting to save his life. Seven hospitals have pooled their resources to help him. More than 500 persons have volunteered to donate blood.

Swedish-speaking nurses care for Nils around-the-clock. His hospital expenses are met by the Hartford Foundation.

Cards and gifts pour into the hospital daily for the fussed, tawny-haired youngster, who asks his nurses morning and night "When can I go home?"

No date for the transplant has been set.

Before Nils came here he wanted to be an airplane pilot. Now, after watching television, he wants to be a cowboy.

Officers 'Attacked' by Swarm of Bees
DETROIT, Mich. (AP)—Four officers sent to the scene of an automobile accident were attacked and stung by bees whose hive had been disturbed Thursday night.

The most seriously stung was a suburban Inkster policeman, Earl A. Breinski, who received multiple stings. Three Wayne County sheriff's deputies with him were less severely injured.

A car driven by Robert Skrycki, 19, of Inkster, rammed a tree and overturned. The officers lifted the injured youth from his car and placed him on the ground. Skrycki began to scream. He had been "out on the bee hive." The bees then stung the officers.

Breinski and Skrycki got hospital treatment for stings. Skrycki was kept for treatment of back injuries.

DOROTHY DIX

Beauty's Popularity Doesn't Match Looks

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a girl of 15 and have a problem concerning my personality. I am considered quite pretty. In fact, I have won several trophies in local beauty contests. I lack something, though, because I cannot make friends. Everyone assures me I'm not conceited. I like to concentrate on my work in school, consequently I have a reputation for being stuck-up. I have occasional dates, but I feel the boys only take me out to show off. Right now I feel I'm getting by just on my looks. I want to be liked for my personality. — Jerri

Dear Jerri: Anyone who has been blessed with a great gift has also been handed a big responsibility. Beauty is not an unalloyed advantage, as you can see by the sad ends to which some beauties have fallen. You have the right idea, and once you've mastered a few combinations you'll come through all right.

To win friends, you must be ready to be a friend. Don't spend all your time at books. Mix with the other kids, get into a few extracurricular activities and work in them. Don't just decorate the premises, improve them. Particularly, don't shirk unglorious jobs. If the gym is to be decorated for a dance, pitch in and do your share—and a bit more. If the church needs a dishwasher for the summer festival, don't be afraid to put your hands into soap suds. The best way for anyone to make friends is to work with people. This precept is personally guaranteed by me.

Dear Dorothy Dix: We have two small children—and a problem. My wife is an excellent business woman who enjoys her career. Up to now I've supported the family well enough, but she could do it better. I hate business. Do you see anything wrong with my staying home and bringing up the children, taking care of the home, etc., while my wife goes home the bacon? — Bored With Business

Dear B. B.: If this unconventional arrangement pleases everyone, why not try it? I'd like to know how you get along, please write me again.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have a terrible serious problem and can't discuss it with anyone but you. I am 18 and deeply in love with a movie star. Don't tell me I'm foolish because I know it's the real thing. If I went to Hollywood would there be a chance of meeting him? — P. H.

Dear P. H.: You're a bit old for adolescent crushes, and I assure you that all you have Hollywood thrives on teenagers like you. Try to push the growing-up process by interesting yourself in something serious.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have been happily married for 22 years. Our children are married, and my husband and I are just about to settle down and enjoy our old age. But along comes a cousin of mine, bachelor of 20, who is jonesing and wants to live with us. My husband says we should take him in. I think I'll leave it to you. One man underfoot all day is bad enough, but two I couldn't take! — W. W.

Dear W. W.: If it's going to make you unhappy, clamp down on the addition to the family. You might however, consider the fact that cousin could take hubby from underfoot and you'd have some blissful spare time every day. Don't even entertain the idea of breaking up a good 32-year marriage over the situation. It's not so bad that a good husband-wife talk won't adjust it.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Since my wife died three years ago I need the answers to thousands of questions about raising two children with a mother. Right after my wife's death, my family and practically all my friends deserted me, for what reason I do not know. I have had to learn to cook, sew, iron, wash and do all the other household tasks without help. Now I would like to learn these things the right way. My biggest problems are: how to buy food and prepare it without wasting it, as I have done in the past; how to buy clothing without being gyped; how to plan meals; should I try to pick up the threads of family life or just let things stay "as is."

I tried to get help through various local agencies but, because I do have relatives and a fair income, they rejected my call and told me I could go on my own. My church friends seem to think the only answer to the problem is to remarry—someone of their choice, of course. They think a young girl would be best for me. Any help you can give will be very much appreciated. — C. C.

Dear C. C.: You certainly have been badly let down by all the people who, in the name of common charity, should have helped you. You are to be congratulated on the way you've handled a most difficult situation for three years. Don't worry about your mistakes; every bride makes the same ones. Since no help is forthcoming from your family, friends, or the agencies who should help you (after all, you're not asking anyone for money), your best bet is good old Uncle Sam. You'll have to resort to reading for the information you want, and that you can get government bulletins available at a very small cost. Write Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C., stating the subjects in which you would like advice. They'll send you a price list, and you can pick the numbers that will help you. As they grow older your children should be trained to take over some of these responsibilities.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Emily and I are to be married in November. We want to be married by a justice of the peace, but mother wants us married in church. Should I plan my own future or do as mother says? — C. W.

Dear C. W.: What's your objection to ministers? A church wedding is a lovely and memorable thing. Unless there is a good reason why you can't have it, I'm certainly for it. That's it over again.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My problem is Butch, a handsome blonde six-footer. We've been going steady since February—on his terms. These are that he has every Saturday and Sunday free for baseball—his consuming passion. Last Saturday I went on a group picnic with some girls, and met a very nice college freshman who asked to date me. I refused, because I

Jordan Was a Creation of Churchill

By HAROLD GUARD

United Press International

LONDON (UPI)—The kingdom of Jordan standing today of perilous tenuous at the center of the revolutionary Middle East, was virtually created by Sir Winston Churchill 37 years ago.

Over cigars and brandy at a dinner with Lawrence of Arabia in Cairo in 1921, Churchill, who was the British colonial secretary, decided to reward Lawrence's chief ally, Sherif Hussein, by giving him a kingdom.

The World War I defeat of the Turkish empire had brought a split-up of the Arab provinces. By the treaty of San Remo, Syria and Lebanon became French mandates, Palestine (west of the Jordan River) and Transjordan (east of the river) and Iraq (formerly Mesopotamia) became British mandated territories.

In recognition of Sherif Hussein's aid to Lawrence in sparking the Arab revolt during the war, it was decided that his two sons, Faisal an Abdullah should be given the thrones of Iraq and Transjordan respectively.

It was their grandsons on whom the world spotlight turned this July 13—23-year-old King Faisal, victim of an assassin's bullet in his Baghdad palace, and his cousin, 22-year-old King Hussein, still standing defiantly in his palace at Amman, guarded by British paratroopers.

In 1948 Transjordan became independent. Two years later Abdullah was made king of the "Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan." During the same year (1948) the British mandate in Palestine ended, and in the ensuing conflict the Arab Legion occupied a considerable area on the Jordan River's west bank.

In 1950 this area was formally incorporated in the kingdom of Jordan and at one stroke the population of the kingdom was doubled by 750,000, dispossessed and disgruntled Palestinians.

Bitter Toward East
The Palestinians "doubled" the number of seats in Jordan's House of Representatives. Their influence steadily grew. Their anti-eastern trades, embittered by the creation of the Jewish state of Israel, grew more and more violent.

In 1956 the Jordan elections produced a parliament hostile even to the continued existence of Jordan. They ended the alliance with Britain.

Yoon G. Hussein, sacked Maj. Gen. Sir John Bagot Glubb as commander of the Arab Legion and promoted young officers who, in return, plotted to oust the king and join in federation with Egypt and Syria.

It was only the loyalty of Bedouin Arabs in the army who rallied and saved Hussein at that time and on at least two occasions since.

What lies in store now for young Hussein can only be conjectured.

thought Butch would be mad, but the boy said he'd take a walk. Should I accept and risk the chance of Butch finding out, or refuse him again? — Connie

Dear Connie: Don't do anything without telling Butch. Regardless of his peculiar ideas on going steady, he should know when another boy is cutting in. Whether you choose Butch or the freshman is your own affair, but as least be honest about it.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a teenager brother with a slight complex. I am what is considered a "big girl." While I am not really fat, I am very self-conscious about my size. I have no trouble at all in the dating field. When I diet all the encouragement I get from friends is: "Oh, you need more weight; you're a big girl" or "You're just right, you don't need a diet." Mother is quite frank with me and tells me I am built nicely but could take off about 10 pounds. — Anselia

Dear Anselia: Trust mom's judgment but back it up with a doctor's advice. Get the details from him and the backing from your mother. Friends, for some curious reason, tend to discourage dieters even when it's quite obvious that a higher eating program is in order.

TODAY'S 2-MINUTE MYSTERY

THE CASE OF ONE MAN'S MISTAKE

Twenty-fourth of a series

by Donald J. Sobel

"Julie Webster worked at the Chico Club on Brown Street as a cigarette girl. Apparently she had one boy friend too many," said Inspector Winters.

"Start at the beginning," requested Haledjian.

"Julie" shared an apartment with two girls a block from the club. Last night at 8:30 she told the bartender she was going there for a few minutes. She'd got a rain in one stocking, she said, and wanted to change. The bartender warned her to wear a coat. She wasn't exactly dressed for the street.

"Julie walked west from the club, though her apartment was east. At the corner of Seventh and Vine, she passed Martin Grady."

Inspector Winters opened the door of his office and had Grady brought in. "Tell Dr. Haledjian what you saw last night," he ordered.

"First, I saw this babe," said Grady. "It was a hot night, but not hot enough to be dressed like that. She mimicked night by me, dressed in light-fitting shorts, low-cut top, black mesh stockings, and shiny shoes that had heels maybe six inches high."

Grady licked his lips nervously. "I followed her till she turned and told me to get lost."

"Five minutes later a man's face shaded by a hat, stroled up and they went into the alley arm in arm. I heard her scream. When I reached the spot, the man had run off. Her clothes were in shreds, and she died without speaking."

"Sometimes," said Haledjian "clothing makes the man. And sometimes it undoes him."

Chapter VI

Craig Jansson paused in the shabby vestibule and looked up and down the street.

Sometimes, when he had the time, and when he was sober enough, he wondered why he stayed with Callie, considering his great distaste for her.

When he had first seen her, the kind of remote unapproachability about her had driven him crazy. He'd have signed anything to get her.

She had been pretty to blonde curls, blue eyes with heavy light-brown lashes, and a body a shade heartier than was fashionable, but there was a softness about it that almost shouted female. It had been that that had hooked him. All that innocence.

In some ways, it worked out all right, though. Once he had given up trying to make a wife of her, he decided to do just exactly as he pleased, and what pleased him was to frequent second-rate bars and pick up second-rate women.

It surprised him to see lights on in most of the houses as he turned into his driveway. It was almost two in the morning, and the people that lived around there were usually long since asleep. Even from his own house a spear of light made its way through a slit in the heavy draperies.

He opened the door quickly, from force of habit, and stepped into the living room, where Callie sat with her ever-present creaking.

"Kind of late for you to be up, isn't it?" he asked.

She put her thread down and hurried to help him with his coat. "Oh, Craig, the most terrible thing has happened. Bruce Adams has been murdered."

Craig watched as she took his coat to the closet. The drinks were beginning to wear off and his head ached.

"And just who is Bruce Adams?"

"The little boy from across the street," she answered as she carefully put the coat on a hanger, making sure the seams hung straight. "The police say some man found him over in the woods (somewhere). He had been strangled."

"What would anyone want to kill a little kid for?"

Callie hurried to his chair to smooth the crocheted pieces on the back and arms before he sat down. "That's what's so frightening. When the police were here, they assured me that he hadn't been molested. They insisted that he died of strangulation, but I know they were just trying to spare me. It must have been a sex fiend."

Craig sat down and looked at his wife. Murder or not, she had taken time to twist her hair up over her face, and now she stood there with those pins and snarl on her face, with her mouth compressed into a line of disapproval talking calmly about sex fiends.

"A surge of rage welled through him that almost made him sick to his stomach. 'There's just has to be a dirty man in it somewhere. Where?' he asked in a deceptively soft voice.

Callie looked at her husband in surprise. "Well it only stands to reason, dear. Bruce was a nice little boy. He was over here quite often for cookies, and he didn't want the sort to cause trouble. For anyone to kill anyone, there has to be a reason, unless he's insane. The police just won't tell us because they don't want to frighten us." Her tone was that of a schoolteacher explaining something to a backward student.

Craig was so angry his hands were shaking. He felt he might have given to give to his wife. In an effort to control himself, he reached for his pipe, but

Absence Good for a Better Appreciation

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP) — Absence may not make the heart grow fonder, but it does make you appreciate some things.

Returning home recently after being almost two months in England, Scotland and France, I found that among the things I appreciated was—and don't smile—my television set.

Mind you, I don't appreciate much in the way of programs appearing on the set in this dead-end summer season. But I do appreciate the thorough and absorbing way the networks have been reporting the news in these recent days of crisis.

News from an American viewpoint is something an American—or at least this American—misses most in Europe. In the larger cities, thank heaven, the Paris Tribune or an air mail edition of the New York Times usually is available. But we always seemed to be somewhere far back in the hills when the hunger for news assailed us.

There are some excellent newspapers published in Britain and France. The Manchester Guardian, for example, penetrates to the remotest hamlets. But there are days when the Guardian feels there's nothing of much significance to its readers happening in America. The editors forget that two of the Guardian's readers included my wife and me.

The same situation confronts news-hungry American tourists who listen to BBC radio news. What we were most interested in hearing about the activities of an American named Bernard Gidley. BBC radio seemed most interested in the fact that Gidley, an American, was in London. I had a news appreciation of something I'd forgotten. American television—when it lives—is a great medium for keeping one informed, with absorption, about this cockeyed world.

Travel is enlightening. But if you stay home, television—when it lives—can bring the world right over your doorstep.

Wreck Injuries Fatal to Woman

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A Peabodias, Ark., woman injured July 23 in a traffic accident, died today.

She was Mrs. Ernestine Martin, 24, who the highway patrol said was driving a car that skidded into a creek and off state highway 37 miles east of Tulsa in Gray County. The auto was pulling a house trailer.

Her husband, Lester, 34, and two small sons were injured slightly in the mishap that occurred on the rain-slick road.

The authorities said crew members aboard the transport plane reported Dominican officials ordered the plane down upon information that illegal arms were to be flown into the republic. Finding none, the officials allowed the plane to continue its flight.

LP Gas Goes Up in State Cent a Gallon

Notification of a one-cent per gallon increase in the wholesale price of LP gas has been received by Arkansas LP gas distributors, according to O. L. Bailey, Jr., Little Rock executive secretary of the Arkansas LP Gas Association.

"This increase, the first since the industry pushed the refinery cost of LP gas to a figure equal to the all-time high Mr. Bailey said, he said it resulted from two factors: (1) short reserve supplies brought about by the severe winter of last year, and (2) the uncertainty of the petroleum industry in view of the Middle Eastern crisis."

KAPOK LIFE PRESERVES

For a great many years a high percentage of the life jackets in use both on pleasure craft and commercial steamships have been kapok. When new and immersed in clean water, these jackets do the job for which they are intended.

They have been under suspicion, however, since 1928 when many lives were lost in a ship sinking. The kapok jackets failing to float in clean water, these jackets do the job for which they are intended.

It has been an uphill battle to bring our nationwide duck population back to something approximating normal figures. Wildlife refuges do a great deal toward maintaining those figures. Congratulations to Fish and Wildlife for a good job, well done.

Thus, it is pleasant to note that the Gurin Corporation of New York announces the distribution of an excellent line of fly rods. These are called the Beaudex, the Priddy and the Landex and they come in nine different sizes and line capacities. They are suitable for use on anything from small trout to the big salmon and bonefish rods. They are manufactured by J. W. Young and Sons of Redditch, England.

I have used both the Beaudex and the Landex. They are sturdy, dependable rods, not too heavy and with excellent non-oscillating tips. Not too expensive priced, they are well worth what you pay for them.

HOOKING MORTALITY — For a good many years, it has been a moot question as to the mortality among released fish which have been hooked on bait as compared to those which were hooked on fly. Arguments were loud and long, but there the matter stayed, status inconclusive.

Now from Michigan comes word of an experiment designed to decide the matter, after a fashion. Instead of bait, "hardware" spinning lures were used.

Nineteen anglers fished for five hundred and eleven hours, using both fly and "hardware" spinning lures. Twelve hundred and fifty-nine trout were caught and released. The mortality of trout taken on fly was 1.3 per cent. Of those taken on "hardware" spinning lures, 4.6 per cent died after release.

I suppose that this proves something, but it fails to alter in any way my original conviction: that was formed when spinning rigs were first introduced, and which has not altered since then. It is this — viewed from any angle, a spinning rig has no rightful place in a trout stream.

Negro Pair Jailed for a Murder

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP)—Jonesboro police today arrested a Negro couple here today wanted in connection with the strangulation death and robbery of a 70-year-old Poplar Bluff, Mo., Negro woman.

Lt. Bill Frank said John Tidwell, 24, and Verna Sampson, 17, a niece of the victim, were arrested at a motel. Frank said Tidwell made a statement to police admitting that he tied and gagged the elderly Negro woman and robbed her of $500 to $600. The victim was Allie L. Mines.

Frank quoted Tidwell as saying he had spent all of the money except $82 on rings, clothes and transportation.

The victim was found in the home of her crippled sister bound and gagged. She apparently died of suffocation.

Sheriff Lester Massingham of Poplar Bluff said he traced the couple to Pocomoke, Ark., where they were hiding out and then to Newport by bus and finally to Jonesboro by taxi.

The officer quoted Tidwell as saying he took the money from a homestead money belt the woman kept around her waist.

The Negro, Frank said, told officers he bound and gagged the woman when she threatened him with prosecution on another matter. The robbery was an afterthought, the Negro claimed.

Domestic Forces U. S. Plane to Land

QUANTANAMO, Cuba (AP) — U. S. authorities here confirmed today that a U. S. Navy plane had been forced to land in the Dominican Republic Thursday after a search was permitted to fly to Cuba.

The authorities said crew members aboard the transport plane reported Dominican officials ordered the plane down upon information that illegal arms were to be flown into the republic. Finding none, the officials allowed the plane to continue its flight.

THE STORY OF MARTHA WAYNE

Except The LORD Build The HOUSE They Labor In Vain That Build It

SOUND FOOTING

If you want a Firm Foundation,— Sound Footing for a lifelong walk... here it is. The Foundation this man stands on can serve as compass to guide you;—a blueprint for better living. It is filled with do's and don'ts that groom one for Heavenly company.
The Psalmist prayed, "Establish my footsteps in Thy word, and let not any iniquity have dominion over me." This man's foundation points the way to Go. Actually, it is the Book of Life...is your name written there?
*It offers peace of mind and comfort of soul to those who take it seriously. Attend church regularly and read of the things it offers one to hold to when one is no longer able to hold the Book...
it offers Sound Footing.*
